architect, often visited Washington and for many years, beginning in 1910, he furnished the executive suite of the D.C. General Hospital as well as designing and supervising the construction of their new hospital building, only to be assigned as architect of the national War Hospitals in Europe. Meanwhile, he returned to his architectural office in Cleveland, where he is again to be found this fall in a restored urban structure already occupied by several of his previous clients. The house he designed for himself in Cleveland, however, is much like a theme-house, with many of his stylistic mannerisms that he consistently used in his various designs. (See Additions, etc.) The home is built of rough-cut clay brick with a hard-burned wood trim. Everything is designed to suggest ruggedness and solidity, while at the same time the house has a certain lightness about it because of its use of a subtle color scheme. The main theme is the use of "Old England," especially represented by dark blue, light blue, green, and orange with blacks and burnt wood
